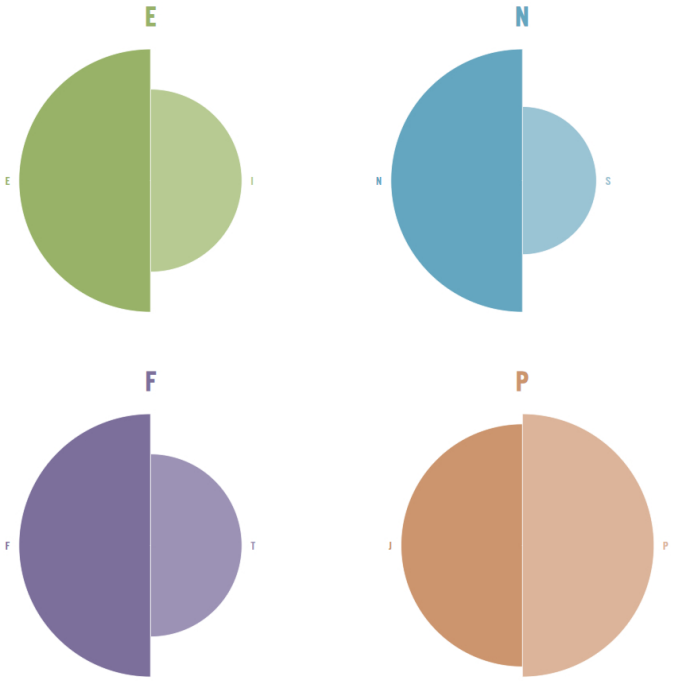
Your Personality Type Results

Congratulations! You have completed your advanced personality assessment. Nice work!

These results will show you the key points of how you scored. The graph below shows your scores on each of the four personality preferences. These four preferences combine to create your personality type.



About Your Type

As an ENFP, you are curious about people and the world around you, and enthusiastic about exploring the deeper meaning of things.

You want authentic experiences and often seek emotional intensity. You prize individuality and often consider the pursuit of happiness to be the highest priority in life, both for yourself and for others.

You place great importance on personal freedom and self-expression, and want to be able to go wherever inspiration leads. Read more >

Your Individual Traits

Unlike most type tests, the TypeFinder assessment doesn't just measure your four preferences. Instead, we look at 23 additional facets of your personality type, allowing us to create a highly specific profile for you. Below, you can see some of your top traits.
